

BedTime Stories

As you may already know, this Thursday, 4th March, is World Book Day. But, at Bewdley Primary, we're, not content with just one day so we're kicking off the BPS Book Week on Monday 1st. The theme this year is Bedtime Stories and we're encouraging children of all ages to sit back, relax and settle down with a good story before they hit the hay! We'll have lots of things going on both at home and in school so look out for all the different activities in your child's year group.

We'll be celebrating bedtime stories old and new on our YouTube channel every evening next week from 5pm. Staff from throughout the school have chosen their favourite picture books to share with you and we'll send you the full schedule to choose from on Monday!

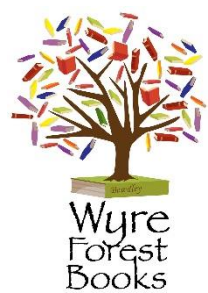

On Thursday, 4th March, we'll be celebrating World Book Day with schools around the world!

This year, children in school and at home are invited to spend the day in their pyjamas, if they'd like, to link in with our bedtime story theme! This is instead of the usual fancy dress day but we'll try to find an opportunity to do something similar later in the year when all of the children are in school.

The best thing about World Book Day is, of course, getting free books! This year, you'll be getting your voucher digitally on Monday. The voucher can be redeemed at many supermarkets and bookshops but our friends at Wyre Forest Books will be creating a special display so that you can go and collect your books from them next week! The shop itself isn't open, but they're going to have all the books on display at the entrance so you can go along with your voucher and choose one of the World Book Day books completely free!

Check out the BPS Facebook page on Thursday to enter our World Book Day competition. Will you be able to guess who's behind the mask...??
